

Communication Plans for ERP Rollouts Training Course

Professional Development Training Course Outline

Category	Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP)	Duration	5 Days
Base Fee	$1,500 USD	Delivery Mode	Online / On-site Hybrid

Course Introduction

Enterprise Resource Planning (ERP) implementation is not just an IT project; it is a profound organizational change management initiative. The success of an ERP rollout hinges on seamless user adoption, which is impossible without a robust, well-executed communication plan. Communication Plans for ERP Rollouts Training Course provides the strategic framework and tactical tools to transform complex technical changes into clear, engaging, and action-oriented messages across all organizational levels. We focus on mastering stakeholder engagement, mitigating change resistance, and aligning project milestones with transparent communication to ensure executive buy-in and end-user readiness. Participants will learn to craft targeted messages, establish effective feedback loops, and utilize multiple channels for a cohesive, organization-wide narrative, directly impacting project success and ROI.

In the current landscape of Digital Transformation, ERP rollouts often fail due to insufficient focus on the "people side" of change. This program goes beyond basic announcements, offering advanced techniques in change communication, crisis communication, and building a culture of transparency during a high-stakes transition. We emphasize creating a "single source of truth" narrative, leveraging both traditional and digital communication tools to manage expectations and celebrate quick wins. By embedding Change Management best practices into the communication strategy, this course prepares communicators to proactively address resistance, foster an environment of trust, and ultimately drive high-value ERP User Adoption for long-term operational efficiency and business process optimization.
