Category	Gender Studies	Duration	5 Days
Base Fee	$1,500 USD	Delivery Mode	Online / On-site Hybrid

Course Introduction

Gender mainstreaming in government is a transformative approach to integrating gender perspectives across all public policies, programs, and institutional frameworks. Gender Mainstreaming in Government Training Course equips participants with the knowledge, skills, and strategies to analyze, design, and implement gender-responsive policies that promote equality, inclusivity, and sustainable development. Leveraging international standards, policy frameworks, and evidence-based practices, the course ensures participants understand the critical intersection between governance, social equity, and gender-sensitive decision-making. By emphasizing capacity building, accountability, and participatory approaches, participants are empowered to champion gender equality across government institutions.

The course focuses on practical applications, emphasizing policy analysis, institutional reforms, and innovative strategies to address systemic gender gaps. Through interactive sessions, case studies, and collaborative learning, participants gain tools to embed gender considerations into budgets, public service delivery, legislative frameworks, and performance monitoring. This training not only enhances technical knowledge but also fosters leadership, advocacy, and evidence-driven policy formulation. Participants will leave equipped to influence organizational culture, promote inclusive governance, and ensure gender equality becomes a measurable outcome in government programs.
