Course Introduction

Social Security and Labour Welfare form the backbone of a resilient and inclusive workforce ecosystem, ensuring economic protection, employee well-being, and sustainable development across industries. In today's rapidly evolving global labour market, organizations are prioritizing social protection systems, workforce compliance, ESG standards, and human capital development to enhance productivity and reduce vulnerability. Social Security and Labour Welfare Training Course is designed to build deep expertise in labour law compliance, social security frameworks, welfare policy implementation, and employee rights protection, enabling professionals to navigate complex regulatory environments effectively.

The course provides a comprehensive understanding of pension systems, health insurance schemes, unemployment benefits, workplace welfare policies, and international labour standards (ILO frameworks). Participants will gain practical insights into policy design, welfare administration, payroll compliance, and social protection mechanisms, aligned with modern trends such as digital social security systems, gig economy protection, and inclusive labour governance. It equips learners with the skills to implement sustainable welfare strategies that enhance both organizational performance and employee satisfaction.
