Course Introduction

In today’s rapidly evolving educational environment, leadership development in schools is no longer a luxury—it is a necessity. Effective school leadership does more than manage curriculum; it empowers educators at every level. Training Course on Leadership in Cultivating Teacher Leadership is designed for school leaders, instructional coaches, and aspiring administrators seeking to build sustainable systems that foster a culture of collaborative leadership, professional growth, and teacher-led innovation. The course leverages evidence-based strategies to equip participants with the tools to empower teachers as leaders who influence school improvement, instructional practices, and student achievement.

This training emphasizes transformational leadership, distributive leadership, mentorship models, and teacher-led initiatives. Participants will explore proven frameworks for recognizing and nurturing leadership potential among teachers. Through case studies, real-life simulations, and reflective practice, participants will understand how to establish a shared vision, build collective efficacy, and create conditions where teacher leadership thrives. This course is the key to building a high-performance school culture rooted in shared ownership and accountability.
